How to submit an English Language Proficiency (ELPA) form

The ELPA form must be completed by an English-language professional from the home institution where English language studies have been completed, and certified by the home institution's International Office.

The language professional is requested to assess the applicant's English-language proficiency and complete and sign the ELPA form selecting one of the following four English-language competencies nominated on the form.

Assessment of student English-language competency by home university

Option 1 – Admission with no further English language assistance

The student is considered to have sufficient English language proficiency to study as an exchange or study abroad student at UTS without further language assistance. This decision would be based on students being assessed as having achieved at least the following equivalent English language assessment:

- IELTS: 6.5 (and 6.0 in writing) or above
- TOEFL: 79-93 band with writing 21 (IBT) or 550-583 with TWE 4.5 (PB)
- PTE: 58-64
- CAE: 58-66

Option 2 – Admission with limited additional English-language assistance

The student is considered to require some further assistance with English language in order to study as an exchange or study abroad student at UTS. This decision would be based on the students being assessed as having the following equivalent English language assessment:

- IELTS: 6.0 (academic) (and 5.5 in writing) or above
- TOEFL: 60-78 and 21 writing (IBT) or 500-549 with 4.5 writing (PB)
- PTE: 50-57
- CAE: 52-57

Students nominated for Option 2, will be required to enrol in subject 59718 Academic English (Spring, July) or 59719 English for University Study (Autumn, February) in addition to approved faculty subjects, but not exceed the full-time load credit requirement of 24-26 credit points.

* 59718 Academic English and 59719 English for University Study are fully accredited subjects of study at UTS Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, which may, where the home University permits, be credited as part of the students' study abroad and exchange subjects. They are each 6 (six) credit point subjects. Students taking either of these subjects will therefore have a further 18 credit points available for other subjects (e.g. three 6 credit point subjects or two 8 credit point subjects) in the same semester.

Option 3 – Admission with on-going additional English-language assistance

The student is assessed as requiring on-going English-language assistance at UTS prior to further study as an exchange or study abroad student at UTS. This decision would be based on the students being assessed as having the following minimum equivalent English language assessment:

- IELTS: 5.0 (academic) (and 5.0 in writing)
- TOEFL:- 35 and 17 in writing (IB); 417 and 3.0 in writing (PB)
- PTE: 36
- CAE: 41

Students recommended as option 3, will be required to enrol in the Australian Language and Culture Studies (ALACS). The ALACS program, taught at the UTS Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, is a fully accredited 24 credit point program. ALACS consists of three 8 credit point subjects that develop students' language skills through the medium of Australian culture subjects. Details are listed on the webpage under the heading ALACS subject list. Enrolment in the Australian Language and Culture Program is considered a full-time load for one semester.

Students who take the ALACS program are not permitted to enrol in other subjects. At the end of the semester, students may choose to sit an IELTS test at UTS. If the result meets the UTS entry requirements (see option 1 or 2), the student will be permitted to study a further semester in subjects at UTS. If the result fails to meet these requirements, the student can choose to study a second semester of ALACS.

Option 4 – Insufficient English-language proficiency

The student is assessed as not sufficiently proficient in English to study as an exchange student or study abroad student at UTS. This decision would be based on the student being assessed as having the following equivalent English-language assessment:

- IELTS: below 5.0 (academic)
- TOEFL: below, 35 (IBT) or 417 (PB)
- PTE: Below 36
- CAE: Below 41

Other Notes: Two semesters study

Applicants using the form below as a method of entry, and intending to undertake two semesters of exchange or study abroad at UTS, may complete an IELTS or similar acceptable test for assessment of their language skills for the second semester.

Where students are successful in obtaining the test score at the required level at the end of the first semester, they will be permitted to enrol in subjects of their choice as exchange or study abroad without further language assistance.

Where students are unsuccessful in obtaining a score at the required level at the end of their first semester, they may be required to complete a further subject in 59718 Academic English or 59719 English for University Study in their second semester of study at UTS.
