

UTS: Green Staff Network

The Green Staff Network (GSN) is a group of UTS staff who care about sustainability. They help improve sustainable practice on campus by encouraging and supporting colleagues to get involved. GSN members come from all areas of the university and contribute in their own way, from organising activities to simply spreading the word about events.

GSN members;

- Promote sustainability on campus
- Network with others
- Act as a point of contact
- Help foster a culture of sustainability at UTS

Benefits:

- Build your sustainability knowledge and skills
- Be the first to hear about initiatives
- Hear guest speakers on interesting topics
- Network with like-minded colleagues
- Get a free Keep-Cup when you join.

Who is eligible?

Everyone with a UTS staff number, full-time or part time staff, academic, professional staff and regular contractors.

What's involved?

The exact level and type of involvement varies depending on your interest and passion. The main task is for members to liaise with UTS sustainability staff and spread the word about sustainability. The time commitment varies but most staff spend no more than 15 minutes per week.
