

We are currently undertaking a number of social distancing initiatives, informed by NSW Health advice, to help reduce social interactions in support of the government's efforts to slow the spread of COVID-19. During this time with so much uncertainty around us, we are continuously monitoring the latest information and guidelines available to us from NSW Health.

In this current environment and with our focus on the safety and wellbeing of our participants, trainers and staff, accessUTS has made a conscious decision to postpone our upcoming face to face course in the month of April.

Your options as a learner:

To adapt to these changing circumstances accessUTS is looking to convert as many of our course offerings as possible into an online and or distance learning format. We realise this is a significant change from the traditional face-to-face and self study mode of most of our courses. We are aware that not all modules of these qualifications will be suitable to online or distance delivery. Where that is the case we will schedule any face-to-face components of the course to a date later in the year once the situation has stabilised and (hopefully) returned to normal.

You will have the option to join the online blended learning mode once it is available at the end of April or to postpone your enrolments until later in the year. If you have already booked into a course and neither of these options work for you, we will refund your course fees paid for modules not attended.

We apologise for any inconvenience caused.
