Master of Strategic Communication

Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences
School of Communication
Introduction

Technological change is a feature of contemporary life and work. Nowhere is this more evident than in communication – social media; data analytics; the use of ‘big data’; artificial intelligence (AI). More than evolutionary progress, there is disruptive change that is creating concerns about privacy and disinformation. There is also social, cultural and political change such as a decline in public trust. At the same time, there are new opportunities to engage and connect.

Communication professionals today need to be up to date with technology and changes in society. Even better, they need to be leaders ready to advise government, corporations and organisations on effective strategic communication.

If you are seeking to advance your career to a senior role in corporate, government, or organisational communication, public relations, or advertising, this course will equip you with advanced knowledge in strategic communication planning, understanding audiences, and the use of a range of digital communication technologies.

Applicants who have completed a minimum of three years’ relevant work experience in the communication industry may wish to consider the Executive Master of Strategic Communication.

Why Strategic Communication at UTS?

It’s more important to do the right thing than do things right
Doing things right is important in all fields of work. But, as the eminent management consultant Peter Drucker said, it is even more important to do the right thing. This means understanding and developing strategy, not just tactics. In this course students learn how to plan and implement communication that effectively achieves the objectives of their organisation.

Transdisciplinary innovation
This advanced degree is a collaboration between the leading UTS School of Communication, the UTS School of International Studies; and UTS Business School, giving students access to the latest thinking in global management as well as communication.

Field visits and internships
Students have the opportunity to undertake internships in a commercial, government or non-profit communication department or an agency to gain practical knowledge and field visits to professional advertising, public relations and/or digital communication offices are arranged in some subjects.

Distinguished academics and industry leaders as lecturers
This course is delivered by a combination of senior academic researchers and leading industry professionals.

Professional recognition
Programs in the public communication discipline at UTS are accredited by the Public Relations Institute of Australia (PRIA). Students have access to free student membership of the PRIA and graduates have an accelerated path to professional membership of the PRIA.
Master of Strategic Communication

The Master of Strategic Communication equips you with the skills to provide effective communication across cultures and influence the digital world with strategy informed by contemporary management.

Course Structure
Students must complete 72 Credit Points (CP) in total – including 6 core subjects (48 CP) and 3 electives (24 CP). Not all elective subjects are available each session.

Duration
This course is typically offered on a one-and-a-half year full-time, or three-year part-time, basis.

Careers
Graduates of this course are equipped to work in senior roles in corporate, government, political, organisational or marketing communication, advertising, public relations or integrated communication, including positions related to marketing and promotion, stakeholder engagement, employee communication, community relations, media relations, and public affairs.

Core subjects (8 CP each) - Compulsory
- Exploring Human Communication: Theories and Practice
- Understanding and Engaging Audiences
- Strategic Communication and Integration
- Influence in the Digital World
- Intercultural and International Communication
- Managing Public Communication

Master of Strategic Communication Electives – choose three from the following:
- Contemporary Advertising Practice
- Corporate and Marketing Communication
- Developing Academic Writing and Speaking Skills
- Intercultural and International Communication
- Organisational Communication and Culture
- Professional Practice
- Stakeholder Engagement
- Academic English: Communication Fundamentals
Graduate Diploma in Strategic Communication

C06129
The Graduate Diploma of Strategic Communication equips you with the skills in traditional and digital forms of strategic communication to write effectively, present professionally and implement various forms of disciplinary knowledge into various environments to achieve organisation objectives.

Strategic Communication offers an articulated program. The Graduate Diploma and Master’s degree share subjects, allowing credit recognition to articulate from a Graduate Diploma to a Master of Strategic Communication.

Course Structure
Students must complete 48 Credit Points (CP) in total – including 4 core subjects (32 CP) and 2 electives (12 CP). Not all elective subjects are available each session.

Core subjects
- Exploring Human Communication: Theories and Practice
- Influence in the Digital World
- Understanding and Engaging Audiences
- Strategic Communication and Integration

Strategic Communication Electives – choose two from the following:
- Contemporary Advertising Practice
- Corporate and Marketing Communication
- Developing Academic Writing and Speaking Skills
- Intercultural and International Communication
- Organisational Communication and Culture
- Professional Practice
- Stakeholder Engagement
- Academic English: Communication Fundamentals

Course Duration
This course is typically offered on a one year full-time, or equivalent part-time, basis.
Testimonials

My first subject for the Master’s program was media relations. One of my favourite experiences from the course was taking a filmed mock interview in the UTS Bon Marche Studio with an ABC journalist. It taught me that you can never be too prepared with your key messages as journalists can and will steer you off track. The practical insight from this subject was invaluable – as, whilst my role in public relations and communications is not to be in front of the camera, it certainly gave me a fantastic understanding on how to instruct my senior management team in their preparation for media comment.

My final subject was crisis communications, and again – the practical elements of the teaching method were instantly relatable to any communications work environment. This subject was engaging and highly relevant. We studied a broad range of crisis case studies (such as country specific responses to the Indian Ocean earthquake and tsunami, workplace fatalities, and product recalls in the pharmaceutical industry). We also looked at best practice theoretical concepts as well as the practical elements of responding to a crisis. The subject included participating in a mock crisis simulation which involved devising communication strategy, key messages / speech writing for CEOs, media releases and social media strategy.

The Master of Strategic Communication is rigorous, and requires discipline and focus, but it is also hugely rewarding. It provides a great foundation for a variety of roles across public and media relations, social media, advocacy, and corporate communication.

Additionally, I cannot speak highly enough of the lecturers in this Master’s program. It was a privilege to undertake such a relevant, practical and worthwhile educational experience.

---

I took up the Master of Strategic Communication because it is very much related to my work here in the Philippines as a public relations officer at the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG).

One of my key takeaways from the course is learning what strategic communication is all about. As a communication professional from another country, learning an international perspective on strategic communication is a great help not only in honing my communication skills but also contributing to the improvement of my organisation’s communication initiatives.

Everything I learned has been advantageous on my part because it has strengthened my capacity to communicate and assist in developing new communication efforts for the DILG thru my office, the PACS as the official communication arm of the Department. For instance, exploring postmodern and sociocultural views in strategic communication has greatly contributed to my understanding and appreciation of how crucial it is in an organisation.

As for my personal life, I saw my 18-month study at the UTS as something more than having a master’s degree but a journey of self-growth. As someone who has never travelled overseas until the opportunity came of being chosen as one of the Filipino scholars under the Australia Awards Scholarships (AAS), I have had many wonderful lessons and beautiful realisations that I will carry with me wherever I go. Truly an amazing experience I will always be happy about and grateful for.

---

Jane Kewin
Marketing & Communications Director for a Law Firm

Daryl Jaramilla
Public Relations Officer at the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG), Philippines
Admission Requirements

Applicants must have completed a UTS recognised bachelor’s degree, or an equivalent or higher qualification, or submitted other evidence of general and professional qualifications that demonstrates potential to pursue graduate studies.

For applicants with a bachelor’s degree, master’s, graduate diploma or graduate certificate:

- the degree must be in the field of society and culture (e.g. Bachelor of Arts), or creative arts.

If the degree is not in the field of society and culture, or creative arts, applicants must also have a minimum of two years’ related professional work experience. These applicants must also provide:

- a curriculum vitae (CV), which should include details of paid and voluntary work or other experiences (e.g. special interest groups) that could be relevant to the course, and,
- a personal statement that outlines their interest in the course and demonstrates an understanding of the opportunities present in the emerging media industries.

Employment experience is assessed according to the response provided by applicants via the employment question on their UTS e-application.

If applicants do not submit these documents, their application may not be considered.

Applicants who have completed a minimum of three years’ relevant work experience in the communication industry may wish to consider the Executive Master of Strategic Communication (C04384).

The English proficiency requirement for international students or local applicants with international qualifications is: Academic IELTS: 6.5 overall with a writing score of 6.0; or TOEFL: paper based: 550-583 overall with TWE of 4.5, internet based: 79-93 overall with a writing score of 21; or AE5: Pass; or PTE: 58-64; or CAE: 176-184.

Eligibility for admission does not guarantee offer of a place.

Recognition of prior learning
Students who have successfully completed subjects from the Graduate Diploma in Strategic Communication are eligible for recognition of prior learning for completed subjects for the Master of Strategic Communication.

Students transferring from the Graduate Diploma in Strategic Communication to the Master of Strategic Communication must have successfully completed at least three subjects in the Strategic Communication postgraduate program.

Professional recognition
The Master of Strategic Communication is accredited by the Public Relations Institute of Australia (PRIA). Students have access to free student membership of the PRIA and graduates have an accelerated path to professional membership of the PRIA.
Why Communication at UTS?

UTS ranked Australia’s No.1 Young University

5 stars
for excellence in Research, Employability, Facilities, Teaching, Innovation, Inclusiveness and Internationalisation

No.1 Median Salary
of all Communication graduates in Australia
Source: Graduate Outcomes Survey 2016–17

UTS Communication ranked within the Top 100
in the QS World University Rankings by Subject 2020

UTS Communication ranked within the Top 100
of Shanghai Ranking’s Global Ranking of Academic Subjects 2019

Winner of the Hybrid Learning Award
Source: QS Reimagine Education Award 2015
How to apply

DOMESTIC STUDENTS
You can apply to study postgraduate coursework at UTS online via the UTS Online Application System, or at one of our Postgraduate Expos or Postgraduate information sessions. Find out everything you need to know about upcoming information sessions at uts.edu.au/events

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS
You should visit the International Students Applying to UTS page for full instructions on how to apply.

VISA REQUIREMENT
To obtain a student visa to study in Australia, international students must enrol full time and on campus. Australian student visa regulations also require international students studying on student visas to complete the course within the standard full-time duration. Students can extend their courses only in exceptional circumstances.