AUSTRALIA’S MOST INNOVATIVE CAMPUS

UTS has created a vibrant campus of the future. Embracing visionary teaching and learning paradigms, this reinvented campus has revitalised the university environment with new buildings, renovated facilities and increased public spaces to facilitate collaboration with industry and the UTS community.

JOIN THE IDEAS HUB
The arrival of the Dr Chau Chak Wing Building (pictured left), designed by world renowned architect Frank Gehry, solidifies UTS’s place in Sydney city’s creative precinct. The building embodies the UTS Business School’s commitment to fostering ideas and collaboration with industry and research.

As a Business/Law student you will experience learning spaces that encourage collaboration and innovation, both in formal and informal learning environments.

STUDY IN A LIVING LAB
With its unique binary code screen design, the newly opened Engineering and IT Building is the single-largest facility to be constructed under UTS’s $1.2 billion City Campus Master Plan. It features a 3D data arena, collaborative theatres and sensors through the building that display real-time data for research purposes. Perfect to gain an edge as a UTS Engineering/Law or IT/Law student.

REAL-LIFE COURTROOM EXPERIENCE
Hone your advocacy skills in our purpose built Moot Court and trial courts that have been designed to reflect the real-life courtroom experience of the NSW Supreme, District and Local Courts.

LEADING EDGE SCIENCE PRECINCT
UTS Science has expanded. Another modern, state-of the art building opened in 2015. With the new ‘Super Lab’, we have revolutionised the way science is taught at UTS. As a Science/Law or Medical Science/Law student you’ll be one of the first to experience it.

Current student

“I was lucky enough to be chosen for the UTS Law High Achievers Mentoring Program, which has seen me paired with one of my legal heroes, The Hon. Michael Kirby. This has shaped my legal perspective and opened my eyes to several legal avenues which I can pursue upon the completion of my degree.”
REAL WORLD EXPERIENCE

PRACTICE-ORIENTED LEARNING
At UTS:Law, many assessments are based on real case studies and we encourage students to take advantage of our strong links with the profession to undertake work experience as part of their degree. Many of our lecturers are also leaders in their field and actively working in their industry, so you’ll get the most relevant and up-to-date legal education. Our practical approach means students graduate with the skills, knowledge and hands-on experience sought by employers worldwide.

MENTORING PROGRAMS
Our First Year Peer Mentoring Program connects new students with their peers and senior law students, and provides an opportunity to develop legal study skills.

UTS:Law also runs an International Students Mentoring Workshop and a High Achievers Mentoring Program. The High Achievers Program matches top performing students with influential members of the legal profession. Mentors involved include: The Hon Michael Kirby AC CMG, Hon Kevin Lindgren QC, and Judge Ann Ainslie-Wallace.

MOOTING
Mooting is a mock-court experience. Coveted by top law students and future employers scoping talent, mooting demands exceptional oral advocacy skills (your ability to persuasively argue a case in court) and comprehensive knowledge of relevant law.

UTS:Law offers an award-winning mooting program. As a new law student, you will be encouraged to sharpen your mooting technique through junior level competitions run by the UTS Law Students’ Society. As your talents develop, you will have the opportunity to apply for a range of competitive-entry, merit-based moots coached by key faculty academics both nationally and internationally.

THE BRENnan JUSTICE AND LEADERSHIP PROGRAM
This is a voluntary program that seeks to strengthen the justice consciousness, idealism and sense of service that UTS:Law students bring to their studies and future professional work. Unique to UTS, the Brennan Program provides an opportunity to develop your intellectual, service and leadership capabilities. You can engage with the themes of justice and its social contexts through a range of lectures and discussion groups, and undertake voluntary service (both legal and non-legal) over the course of your studies.

COMMUNITY BASED ASSESSMENT
UTS:Law’s creative and practical approach to teaching and learning and our strong industry links have led to the development of community based assessment. This means in some subjects, you can choose to be assessed in part through your work on real-life community projects, instead of exams and essays, which is great for your work experience and CV.

SUMMER CLERKSHIP AND GRADUATE EMPLOYMENT PROGRAM
UTS:Law participates in the Summer Clerkship and Graduate Employment Program in conjunction with major Sydney law firms and government departments. The programs are generally open to penultimate and final-year law students. Students who participate develop a greater understanding of employment opportunities and legal experience and add experience to their CV.

LAW AND JUSTICE STUDIES
UTS:Law offers a specialist subject that gives students experience and knowledge of the law in practice which is credited towards their law degree. Students select a project from a broad range of options in a variety of areas including consumer protection law, tenancy law, health law, domestic violence, dispute resolution, apprehended violence orders, succession, and immigration law or can develop their own project.

WORK READY SKILLS
Because being a successful law graduate in today’s world requires more than just knowing the law and how to apply it, graduate attributes are embedded into every law subject at UTS to ensure our graduates are work ready for the global environment.
International study opportunities are available in countries such as:
INTERNATIONAL EXPERIENCES

GLOBAL EXCHANGE

Global Exchange allows you to study overseas for one or two semesters at a UTS partner university in Asia, Europe or the Americas. Global Exchange is an opportunity for you to gain intercultural knowledge, skills and an experience in another country. While you are studying overseas, you remain enrolled full-time at UTS and receive credit towards your UTS degree.

INTERNATIONAL LEGAL INTERNSHIP & APPLIED HUMAN RIGHTS FIELDWORK

UTS:Law offers electives that are undertaken overseas during the summer and winter breaks. These electives are 2-3 week international work placements that are credited towards your law degree. They provide valuable experiential learning opportunities that will give you experience of legal and policy issues in an international context. You will work on ‘real-world’ legal projects. You can either undertake an established project or initiate your own project.

DIPLOMA IN LANGUAGES

The Diploma in Languages is designed to be taken concurrently with an undergraduate or postgraduate coursework degree program at UTS. It facilitates university students learning about language and culture and thereby broadens the opportunities associated with their professional degree.

This course allows students to gain exposure to international perspectives and consolidate their linguistic capabilities in a language other than English. Language options include: Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese and Spanish. Language and culture subjects taken throughout the diploma draw on the UTS Model of Learning, which combines international and intercultural engagement with blended and research-inspired learning. JOHANAN OTTENSOOSER

Bachelor of Business/Bachelor of Laws 2014 Graduate

Winner of the Crown Princess of Denmark Scholarship Johanan Ottensooser went to Denmark as part of the UTS Global Exchange program. During his time in Denmark, he studied at the University of Copenhagen, met the Princess, and was part of the World Trade Law Negotiation competition in Geneva.

“The opportunities I got there were amazing. When you’re in Europe, you’re in the centre of it all. You can literally just go on a flight that costs less than a big night out, and have the opportunity to meet the world leaders in these areas. I was sent to Geneva twice, the first time was for the World Trade Law Negotiation competition where I represented the University of Copenhagen, and the other time was to study the rights of the child in international law.”
THERESA DINH

Barrister
Sixth Floor Selborne Wentworth Chambers
UTS: Law Graduate

I graduated from a Bachelor of Laws/Bachelor of Business in 2008. I chose to study a combined business and law degree at UTS because of UTS’s strong reputation in both business and law and its emphasis on practical learning.

A typical career (if there is such a thing) for someone with my qualifications might include working as a solicitor, a barrister, an accountant, in finance or as an in-house lawyer.

In my role as a barrister practising at Sixth Floor Selborne Wentworth Chambers, I appear in Court to argue my client’s case, I advise my clients on the strengths and weaknesses of their case and how best to prepare their evidence and run litigation. I practise in a wide range of civil matters in different jurisdictions and greatly enjoy the varying and challenging nature of my work and the autonomy of running my own practice.

My advice to anyone considering a combined business and law degree who wishes to pursue a career in law would be to make the most of the extra curricula activities offered by the Faculty of Law. My participation in interservice moot (mock court) at UTS (including in an international commercial arbitration competition in Vienna, which I have since coached for UTS) gave me the skills to develop, write and present legal arguments, and inspired my passion for the law and advocacy.
In Australia, legal practice is regulated at state level; in NSW you must satisfy the requirements of the Legal Profession Admission Board (LPAB). The study path for entry to the legal profession in NSW begins with undertaking a NSW accredited law degree. Then, in order to be eligible for admission to practice, it is necessary to complete an accredited program of practical legal training (PLT).

UTS is the only university in Sydney to offer both these components.

Further information on gaining admission as a lawyer in New South Wales is provided by Legal Profession Admission Board (LPAB) via www.lpab.justice.nsw.gov.au

UNDERSTANDING THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LAWYERS, SOLICITORS AND BARRISTERS

Lawyer is a broad term that refers to both solicitors and barristers.

For the most part, solicitors provide general legal advice to their clients. Their role also includes settling disputes, drafting documents, directing negotiations and/or representing their clients in court or tribunal proceedings.

Barristers are specialist advocates and spend the majority of their practice presenting cases in court or formal hearings on behalf of their clients. Barristers are likely to specialise in certain areas of the law, for example criminal law. They also provide specialist legal advice and act as mediators, arbitrators, referees or conciliators. Barristers are independent practitioners and are generally referred clients by solicitors who provide the background ‘brief’ on a case.

JAMESINA-LE MCLEOD

Bachelor of Arts in Communication (Journalism) Bachelor of Laws
Final year student

“Getting involved in the Price Moot is one of the best experiences I’ve had during my law degree. It has enhanced my understanding of how to research, structure and articulate legal concepts both at university and in the workplace. Mooting is also an intensely collaborative and social experience – I’ve learnt so much from my team mates. Having the opportunity to meet law students from around the world, some from places where free speech and censorship are issues affecting everyday life, was also eye-opening.”

Jamesina competed in the Price Media Law Moot in Oxford, UK, where she was awarded ‘Best Oralist’. Mooting competitions give students the chance to research, draft submissions and orally present a hypothetical client’s case in a court of appeal.

At UTS students are encouraged to extend themselves into challenging extra-curricular activities such as Mooting. Mooting competitions are fully funded by UTS and participants receive credit towards their law degree.

HONOURS

ALEX COLLIE
Bachelor of Laws
Final year student

“When I decided to study law I wished to keep working at my current job, so the ability to study outside of working hours was very important to me. UTS not only offered a very flexible timetable that could easily fit in with my work commitments, but also provided excellent online resources that made it easy to keep up with my studies while at the office or at home.

My area of work is in Geographic Information Systems (GIS) which involves analysing and producing spatial data and creating digital maps. I currently work in editing and creating GPS data, such as that found in your car GPS, on websites or on your phone. Keeping a good balance between work and study can be difficult given the demanding nature of studying law. I discussed my study commitments with my employers and together we were able to work out a schedule that allowed me to meet my study commitments whilst still meeting my work potential. Simply discussing with your employer the nature of your study can be very helpful in reaching a working regime that is in the interests of both you and your employer.”

CODIE ASIMUS

Linklaters, London
UTS:Law Graduate

Practical Legal Training (PLT) at UTS requires students to complete three subjects and 80 days of work placement.

“For the professional practice component, I completed my work placements at Linklaters in London – a global commercial law firm; King & Wood Mallesons – a leading commercial law firm in the Asia-Pacific region; and David Begg & Associates – a small commercial litigation firm in Sydney. The cases and transactions I worked on across all three firms were diverse – from acting for the borrower to raise €6 billion in a syndicated loan involving 39 banks in London, to litigating against three defendants for operating a fraudulent investment scheme in Sydney. These experiences gave me a great insight into the legal profession and the many different career paths open to a law graduate.

The experience gained through my PLT placements not only changed my future career goals, but also resulted in me moving to the other side of the world. I’ve since accepted a graduate position and signed a two year training contract with Linklaters in London.”

Bachelor of Business / Bachelor of Laws

“Undertaking a combined law degree at UTS has played a significant role in my ability to practise as a lawyer as there has been a strong practical component encompassed in the majority of subjects which makes it very unique when comparing to many other law schools in Sydney and New South Wales. These skills have been significantly transferable in the workplace which is constantly identified by employers.

The graduate attributes that underpin each of the courses have resonated when approaching tasks in my final year of law school as well as in my role as a paralegal. I found from my experience in the workforce, that the graduate attributes that are developed at university flourish once you commence practical work experience.”

REYNATO REODICA

UTS Law graduate
Bachelor of Arts in Communications (Social Inquiry) / Bachelor of Laws
UTS Alumni Award Winner

“If you find something you love and you’re good at it too, then go for it. It might not be the most common career path, but if it’s the right one for you, it’s the best!

I chose UTS because the law degree was well regarded and the combination with social inquiry was perfect for my areas of interest. Since graduating from UTS I have worked in various roles such as Chief Executive of the peak non-government organisation representing the issues of young people and youth services in NSW, project management of a music and performance stage at the Sydney Royal Easter Show, and manager of a human services policy team for the NSW Government.

I am currently the Manager, Individualised Options for Ageing, Disability and Home Care - NSW Department of Family and Community Services. We are transitioning the NSW disability service system by creating opportunities for people with disability to enter individualised funding arrangements and prepare them for the National Disability Insurance Scheme. Essentially, I am working with my team to develop ways to give people with disability more choice, flexibility and control over their supports and achieve better lives. It’s very rewarding to play my part in a once in a generation reform program that will significantly change lives for people with disability across NSW.”

"UTS: Law is renowned for its practice-orientated focus. It ensures that law students not only graduate with a well-informed understanding of the law, but also that they are work ready. This is extremely beneficial as employers are attracted to graduates who can demonstrate that they are knowledgeable of the industry. During my time at UTS, I have developed a great interest in social justice. I am currently working at Anti-Slavery Australia, based within the Faculty of Law at UTS. It is the only specialist legal service that deals with trafficking and slavery in Australia. I am the Volunteer Youth Advocates Co-ordinator. My role requires me to coordinate the Youth Advocates Program, a peer-to-peer program designed to raise awareness and education around the issues of forced marriage and forced labour. Throughout my time at Anti-Slavery Australia, I have been involved in the first religious leaders forum on forced marriage at NSW Parliament and I have also presented at seminars and workshops on forced marriage.

I am also involved in Amnesty International’s NSW Legal Network as the Communications Officer. The Legal Network comprises of lawyers, law students and people interested in the law to raise awareness about human rights. As the Communications Officer, I ensure that our events are promoted effectively. I am also a paralegal at a Sydney law firm which has provided me with great experience in the field of law. From attending property settlements, to filing defences in the local court, I am continuously learning and growing."

“I chose to study law at UTS because of its specific combination with medical science, the choice of completing the Practical Legal Training at UTS as well as its convenient location within the Sydney CBD. From a student perspective, a highlight of UTS: Law is the practical focus upon delivery of the subject material and the approachable and passionate culture of both academics and students. It is the opportunity to learn in such a flexible and supportive environment while balancing it with other work and extra-curricular commitments that, in my opinion, sets UTS: Law apart.”

KANE KERSAITIS

Bachelor of Science in Information Technology Bachelor of Laws
Final year student

“My studies at UTS have undoubtedly contributed to my career, not least of all because lawyers need a Law degree before they can practice! More than that, however, they have given me a real idea of where I would like to go within the Law. UTS goes out of its way to try and show students how the Law operates in the real world, rather than teaching the black-letter law in a vacuum. The best example is the number of highly-esteemed guest lecturers which I have had the pleasure of listening to throughout my time at UTS, ranging from high-ranking senior counsel to the head of the enforcement team at ASIC. On a slightly more practical level, I think that this real-world perspective also helps you to understand how to apply the Law.”

I graduated from a combined Bachelor of Business and Bachelor of Laws degree in 2010. I chose to study at UTS because it offered a practical and flexible double degree program that focused on the knowledge and skills necessary to hit the ground running in the workplace.

A typical career for someone with business and law qualifications is quite broad. The versatility of the combined degree means that you could work in any number of roles, including practising in a private law firm, starting your own business, working in an investment bank or in the not-for-profit sector.

In my role as a barrister, I practise mainly in resolving corporate and commercial disputes and am responsible for advising and appearing on behalf of a wide range of clients in courts and tribunals across Australia. On an average day I am usually preparing for or attending hearings, mediations or arbitrations, providing advice to clients, and balancing the commercial challenges of running a small business. The best part about being a barrister is the flexibility. Being your own boss is always appealing if you’re self-motivated.

My advice to anyone interested in studying law is to treat your studies seriously and get as much experience as you can. Take the opportunities to clerk at law firms or work as a judge’s associate if and when such opportunities arise. With law, you get as much out of it as you put in.

PAOLO MEZZATESTA

2014 Graduate Juris Doctor

“My JD degree has opened up quite a few doors in the Federal Government department in which I work. On a broad level my exposure to case law and statute has really assisted me to competently interact with and appreciate the administrative law I deal with in my daily tasks (for instance how review bodies operate, natural justice and procedural fairness). Additionally, the core capabilities I’ve picked up along the way, such as deeper critical thinking and managing my time have improved my ability to ask the right questions and work towards workable solutions in every aspect of my career.

Studying law at UTS is a rewarding and enriching experience. It is a constant challenge but one with a resounding sense of deep accomplishment at its end. I would say to anyone thinking about Law, think outside the box and study at UTS. The location is central, the staff are accessible and interested in your questions and concerns and the atmosphere is never intimidating or limiting.”

Most local students will be studying in a Commonwealth Supported Place which means the Australian Government makes a contribution to the cost of your study while you pay a student contribution.
